

Weekly Citizen

INDIANA EDITORS.

They Arrive From the South Early this Morning.

Seeing the Sights of the Metropolis This Afternoon.

PLEASANTLY ENTERTAINED.

The gentlemen and ladies of the Northern Indiana Editorial excursion party arrived in their two special coaches by the regular train from the south last night, and were taken in charge by the Albuquerque Press committee at an early hour this morning. They were assigned to the two principal hotels, where provisions had been made for their entertainment during the day, and after breakfast a party of them distributed themselves around town and took in the sights till noon, while the remainder occupied the tables in the Commercial club rooms and the reading rooms of the hotels, writing letters to their respective papers. After dinner they were taken by citizens in a carriage through the principal streets of the city, over to the old town, out to the Indian school, up to the University, and to other points of interest in the vicinity, and this part of the program is still in progress. The CITIZEN goes to press. This entertainment will close with a reception at the Commercial club this evening, after which the visitors take their cars for Santa Fe.

We have entertained several editorial excursion parties in a haphazard, but in most cases a great majority of those who came along had no more intimate connection with the press than that of delinquents subscribers, but the Indiana party is not of that sort. They will seem to be sure enough representatives of newspapers, editors and their wives, the kind that can write as well as read, and from the number of letters they have mailed to-day and the amount of information they have gathered, the CITIZEN offers that the people of northern, in fact the whole of Indiana will soon learn something about the wonderful natural resources of New Mexico.

This evening the editors, their wives, daughters and friends, ladies and gentlemen, will be tendered a reception at the Commercial club.

The committee of newspaper men at the depot early in the morning, assigned the following at the two doors selected:

SAN FELIPE

F. A. Hambrough and wife, Peru; Mrs. Edward Cunningham, Noblesville; F. E. Ross and wife, Garrett; D. R. Leper, D. J. Stod and wife, E. S. Stodd, South Bend; J. W. Barnes and wife, Mrs. R. E. Buckingham, Mrs. O. S. Perkins, C. E. McKeen and wife, Legomier, C. O. Phillips, Rochester; C. O. Moseman and wife, Knox; A. G. Smith and wife, Indianapolis; A. R. Underwood and wife, McDonald; E. W. Kueper, J. E. McDowell and wife, J. D. Casey and wife, J. L. Deming and wife, Legomier; C. H. Chase and wife, C. F. Moser and wife, Ekhart; O. W. Hosler and wife, Warsaw; T. P. Drake, Remond; M. H. Ingram and wife, Winona; Dudley Wadsworth, L. Porte; Mrs. Louis Atwater and daughter, Miss Minnie Hunkle, Wanatah; C. E. Martin and wife, Westerville; H. Clyde Willis, Waterloo; Ed. F. Newton, Keawau; J. H. Watson, Argos.

AMRIO

J. W. French, Michigan City; C. F. S. Neal; R. M. Keen, Lebanon; Lloyd H. King, Manchester; F. E. Ekhart, Allentown; R. H. Weamer, Bristol; F. D. Hamburg and wife, Mrs. Minnie McKinley, Munroe; John L. Forkner and wife, H. Terhune and wife, Anderson; M. B. Tenney and wife, C. C. Wolf and wife, A. A. Gast, wife and son, Rochester; J. H. Shrank and wife, T. W. Overman, W. J. Houck and wife, H. G. Henseler and wife, Marion; A. B. Beyeler and wife, W. H. Beyeler, Miss Myrtle Barber, Mrs. Thos. A. Newell, M. V. Starr, Goebel; C. H. Chase, Jr., Ekhart; H. E. Wade, wife, S. Contigia and daughter, Miss Harriet Conlogue, Kenda village.

SCRAP BOOK NOTES

Judge Lee adjourned his district court this afternoon to mingle with his fellow Journal.

R. H. Weamer, editor and publisher of the Bristol Banner, left his card at the Citizen office.

The Gosdin Times, daily and weekly, is represented by Alex R. Beyle, business manager.

T. E. Drake, of Remond, is editor of the Methodist News. He is a good writer, and thoroughly religious.

The people are rising with each other in their efforts to make the stay in the city of excursions pleasant.

Solon E. Ross, W. S. Burke and other members of the Commercial club, have all devoted the day to the editors.

The excursions speak in the highest terms of praise of the receptions they have met with in the territory and at El Paso.

C. A. Hartwell, traveling passenger agent of the Santa Fe system, came up from the south yesterday in charge of the party. It is through his determination and persistence that the excursions return via the Santa Fe to the east. C. H. Morehouse, the popular freight and division agent of the road, came up from El Paso with the excursions.

Cal. Albright and wife, of the Democrat, deserve special praise for active work in entertaining the Indiana brethren.

John E. Stephens, manager and editor of La Cronica de Valencia, is in the city on business. He is paying courtesy to the Indiana editors.

The editors are really handsome looking gentlemen, while the ladies are not only handsome, which means stately, but pretty and vivacious.

H. E. Wadsworth is a prominent figure in the party. He publishes the Argus, La Porte, and is accompanied by wife and daughter, Miss Laura.

Judge Wm. D. Lee is a former resident of Indiana. He will make the address of welcome at the Commercial club this evening to the Indiana editors.

Judge Wm. D. Lee is a former resident of Indiana. He will make the address of welcome at the Commercial club this evening to the Indiana editors.

There is only one gentleman in the party who parts his name in the middle, and that is H. Clyde Willis, of the Water & Power. He is good looking girls.

Mrs. Louis Atwater, of Wanatah, represents her husband's paper, the News. Her daughter, Miss May, is making the trip with her. They are lively reputations.

The grass is low among the excursions acts is the "swellest" of the lot. She is an elegant lady with two clear eyes, and speak forth wit and repartee, and a mountful of solid information to back all we say.

Wherever Jack Moore is found, he is one of the exponents of the moment. Investigation developed that he was looking for one of his old Indiana friends, the J. M. Moore, the real estate dealer.

Miss Harriet Conlogue, daughter of Eddie Conlogue, Kenda village, and Mrs. Lydia Wadsworth, of La Porte, are engaged as the waiters of the restaurant. They are the feature of a unique party.

Miss Lydia Wadsworth, of La Porte, is engaged to assist the editor of the Commercial club rooms and the reading rooms of the hotels, writing letters to their respective papers. After dinner they were taken by citizens in a carriage through the principal streets of the city, over to the old town, out to the Indian school, up to the University, and to other points of interest in the vicinity, and this part of the program is still in progress. The CITIZEN goes to press. This entertainment will close with a reception at the Commercial club this evening, after which the visitors take their cars for Santa Fe.

We have entertained several editorial excursion parties in a haphazard, but in most cases a great majority of those who came along had no more intimate connection with the press than that of delinquents subscribers, but the Indiana party is not of that sort. They will seem to be sure enough representatives of newspapers, editors and their wives, the kind that can write as well as read, and from the number of letters they have mailed to-day and the amount of information they have gathered, the CITIZEN offers that the people of northern, in fact the whole of Indiana will soon learn something about the wonderful natural resources of New Mexico.

This evening the editors, their wives, daughters and friends, ladies and gentlemen, will be tendered a reception at the Commercial club.

The committee of newspaper men at the depot early in the morning, assigned the following at the two doors selected:

SAN FELIPE

F. A. Hambrough and wife, Peru; Mrs. Edward Cunningham, Noblesville; F. E. Ross and wife, Garrett; D. R. Leper, D. J. Stod and wife, E. S. Stodd, South Bend; J. W. Barnes and wife, Mrs. R. E. Buckingham, Mrs. O. S. Perkins, C. E. McKeen and wife, Legomier, C. O. Phillips, Rochester; C. O. Moseman and wife, Knox; A. G. Smith and wife, Indianapolis; A. R. Underwood and wife, McDonald; E. W. Kueper, J. E. McDowell and wife, J. D. Casey and wife, J. L. Deming and wife, Legomier; C. H. Chase and wife, C. F. Moser and wife, Ekhart; O. W. Hosler and wife, Warsaw; T. P. Drake, Remond; M. H. Ingram and wife, Marion; A. B. Beyeler and wife, W. H. Beyeler, Miss Myrtle Barber, Mrs. Thos. A. Newell, M. V. Starr, Goebel; C. H. Chase, Jr., Ekhart; H. E. Wade, wife, S. Contigia and daughter, Miss Harriet Conlogue, Kenda village.

SCRAP BOOK NOTES

Judge Lee adjourned his district court this afternoon to mingle with his fellow Journal.

R. H. Weamer, editor and publisher of the Bristol Banner, left his card at the Citizen office.

The Gosdin Times, daily and weekly, is represented by Alex R. Beyle, business manager.

T. E. Drake, of Remond, is editor of the Methodist News. He is a good writer, and thoroughly religious.

The people are rising with each other in their efforts to make the stay in the city of excursions pleasant.

Solon E. Ross, W. S. Burke and other members of the Commercial club, have all devoted the day to the editors.

The excursions speak in the highest terms of praise of the receptions they have met with in the territory and at El Paso.

C. A. Hartwell, traveling passenger agent of the Santa Fe system, came up from the south yesterday in charge of the party. It is through his determination and persistence that the excursions return via the Santa Fe to the east. C. H. Morehouse, the popular freight and division agent of the road, came up from El Paso with the excursions.

Cal. Albright and wife, of the Democrat, deserve special praise for active work in entertaining the Indiana brethren.

John E. Stephens, manager and editor of La Cronica de Valencia, is in the city on business. He is paying courtesy to the Indiana editors.

The editors are really handsome looking gentlemen, while the ladies are not only handsome, which means stately, but pretty and vivacious.

H. E. Wadsworth is a prominent figure in the party. He publishes the Argus, La Porte, and is accompanied by wife and daughter, Miss Laura.

Judge Wm. D. Lee is a former resident of Indiana. He will make the address of welcome at the Commercial club this evening to the Indiana editors.

There is only one gentleman in the party who parts his name in the middle, and that is H. Clyde Willis, of the Water & Power. He is good looking girls.

Mrs. Louis Atwater, of Wanatah, represents her husband's paper, the News. Her daughter, Miss May, is making the trip with her. They are lively reputations.

The grass is low among the excursions acts is the "swellest" of the lot. She is an elegant lady with two clear eyes, and speak forth wit and repartee, and a mountful of solid information to back all we say.

Wherever Jack Moore is found, he is one of the exponents of the moment. Investigation developed that he was looking for one of his old Indiana friends, the J. M. Moore, the real estate dealer.

Miss Harriet Conlogue, daughter of Eddie Conlogue, Kenda village, and Mrs. Lydia Wadsworth, of La Porte, are engaged as the waiters of the restaurant. They are the feature of a unique party.

Miss Lydia Wadsworth, of La Porte, is engaged to assist the editor of the Commercial club rooms and the reading rooms of the hotels, writing letters to their respective papers. After dinner they were taken by citizens in a carriage through the principal streets of the city, over to the old town, out to the Indian school, up to the University, and to other points of interest in the vicinity, and this part of the program is still in progress. The CITIZEN goes to press. This entertainment will close with a reception at the Commercial club this evening, after which the visitors take their cars for Santa Fe.

We have entertained several editorial excursion parties in a haphazard, but in most cases a great majority of those who came along had no more intimate connection with the press than that of delinquents subscribers, but the Indiana party is not of that sort. They will seem to be sure enough representatives of newspapers, editors and their wives, the kind that can write as well as read, and from the number of letters they have mailed to-day and the amount of information they have gathered, the CITIZEN offers that the people of northern, in fact the whole of Indiana will soon learn something about the wonderful natural resources of New Mexico.

This evening the editors, their wives, daughters and friends, ladies and gentlemen, will be tendered a reception at the Commercial club.

The committee of newspaper men at the depot early in the morning, assigned the following at the two doors selected:

SAN FELIPE

F. A. Hambrough and wife, Peru; Mrs. Edward Cunningham, Noblesville; F. E. Ross and wife, Garrett; D. R. Leper, D. J. Stod and wife, E. S. Stodd, South Bend; J. W. Barnes and wife, Mrs. R. E. Buckingham, Mrs. O. S. Perkins, C. E. McKeen and wife, Legomier, C. O. Phillips, Rochester; C. O. Moseman and wife, Knox; A. G. Smith and wife, Indianapolis; A. R. Underwood and wife, McDonald; E. W. Kueper, J. E. McDowell and wife, J. D. Casey and wife, J. L. Deming and wife, Legomier; C. H. Chase and wife, C. F. Moser and wife, Ekhart; O. W. Hosler and wife, Warsaw; T. P. Drake, Remond; M. H. Ingram and wife, Marion; A. B. Beyeler and wife, W. H. Beyeler, Miss Myrtle Barber, Mrs. Thos. A. Newell, M. V. Starr, Goebel; C. H. Chase, Jr., Ekhart; H. E. Wade, wife, S. Contigia and daughter, Miss Harriet Conlogue, Kenda village.

SCRAP BOOK NOTES

Judge Lee adjourned his district court this afternoon to mingle with his fellow Journal.

R. H. Weamer, editor and publisher of the Bristol Banner, left his card at the Citizen office.

The Gosdin Times, daily and weekly, is represented by Alex R. Beyle, business manager.

T. E. Drake, of Remond, is editor of the Methodist News. He is a good writer, and thoroughly religious.

The people are rising with each other in their efforts to make the stay in the city of excursions pleasant.

Solon E. Ross, W. S. Burke and other members of the Commercial club, have all devoted the day to the editors.

The excursions speak in the highest terms of praise of the receptions they have met with in the territory and at El Paso.

C. A. Hartwell, traveling passenger agent of the Santa Fe system, came up from the south yesterday in charge of the party. It is through his determination and persistence that the excursions return via the Santa Fe to the east. C. H. Morehouse, the popular freight and division agent of the road, came up from El Paso with the excursions.

Cal. Albright and wife, of the Democrat, deserve special praise for active work in entertaining the Indiana brethren.

John E. Stephens, manager and editor of La Cronica de Valencia, is in the city on business. He is paying courtesy to the Indiana editors.

The editors are really handsome looking gentlemen, while the ladies are not only handsome, which means stately, but pretty and vivacious.

H. E. Wadsworth is a prominent figure in the party. He publishes the Argus, La Porte, and is accompanied by wife and daughter, Miss Laura.

Judge Wm. D. Lee is a former resident of Indiana. He will make the address of welcome at the Commercial club this evening to the Indiana editors.

There is only one gentleman in the party who parts his name in the middle, and that is H. Clyde Willis, of the Water & Power. He is good looking girls.

Mrs. Louis Atwater, of Wanatah, represents her husband's paper, the News. Her daughter, Miss May, is making the trip with her. They are lively reputations.

The grass is low among the excursions acts is the "swellest" of the lot. She is an elegant lady with two clear eyes, and speak forth wit and repartee, and a mountful of solid information to back all we say.

Wherever Jack Moore is found, he is one of the exponents of the moment. Investigation developed that he was looking for one of his old Indiana friends, the J. M. Moore, the real estate dealer.

Miss Harriet Conlogue, daughter of Eddie Conlogue, Kenda village, and Mrs. Lydia Wadsworth, of La Porte, are engaged as the waiters of the restaurant. They are the feature of a unique party.

Miss Lydia Wadsworth, of La Porte, is engaged to assist the editor of the Commercial club rooms and the reading rooms of the hotels, writing letters to their respective papers. After dinner they were taken by citizens in a carriage through the principal streets of the city, over to the old town, out to the Indian school, up to the University, and to other points of interest in the vicinity, and this part of the program is still in progress. The CITIZEN goes to press. This entertainment will close with a reception at the Commercial club this evening, after which the visitors take their cars for Santa Fe.

We have entertained several editorial excursion parties in a haphazard, but in most cases a great majority of those who came along had no more intimate connection with the press than that of delinquents subscribers, but the Indiana party is not of that sort. They will seem to be sure enough representatives of newspapers, editors and their wives, the kind that can write as well as read, and from the number of letters they have mailed to-day and the amount of information they have gathered, the CITIZEN offers that the people of northern, in fact the whole of Indiana will soon learn something about the wonderful natural resources of New Mexico.

This evening the editors, their wives, daughters and friends, ladies and gentlemen, will be tendered a reception at the Commercial club.

The committee of newspaper men at the depot early in the morning, assigned the following at the two doors selected:

SAN FELIPE

F. A. Hambrough and wife, Peru; Mrs. Edward Cunningham, Noblesville; F. E. Ross and wife, Garrett; D. R. Leper, D. J. Stod and wife, E. S. Stodd, South Bend; J. W. Barnes and wife, Mrs. R. E. Buckingham, Mrs. O. S. Perkins, C. E. McKeen and wife, Legomier, C. O. Phillips, Rochester; C. O. Moseman and wife, Knox; A. G. Smith and wife, Indianapolis; A. R. Underwood and wife, McDonald; E. W. Kueper, J. E. McDowell and wife, J. D. Casey and wife, J. L. Deming and wife, Legomier; C. H. Chase and wife, C. F. Moser and wife, Ekhart; O. W. Hosler and wife, Warsaw; T. P. Drake, Remond; M. H. Ingram and wife, Marion; A. B. Beyeler and wife, W. H. Beyeler, Miss Myrtle Barber, Mrs. Thos. A. Newell, M. V. Starr, Goebel; C. H. Chase, Jr., Ekhart; H. E. Wade, wife, S. Contigia and daughter, Miss Harriet Conlogue, Kenda village.

SCRAP BOOK NOTES

Judge Lee adjourned his district court this afternoon to mingle with his fellow Journal.

R. H. Weamer, editor and publisher of the Bristol Banner, left his card at the Citizen office.

The Gosdin Times, daily and weekly, is represented by Alex R. Beyle, business manager.

T